Community Access Television

Empowering Community Voices and Visions

Telephone: 814-454-2226

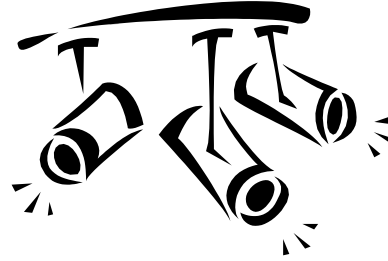

Television By You, For You!

Our vision is to empower community voices and visions. Community Access Television (CATV) is a non-profit, membership-based public access television station offering community members and organizations the tools and training they need to produce their own programs for Time Warner Channel 2.

Public access television is unique. Getting off the ground in October 1998, the programming found on CATV is created by volunteer producers who are members of our community. CATV provides a unique and powerful venue for citizen expression in Erie, a forum for public discourse and dialogue, and a showcase for local issues and events. Our services and facilities are available to all members of the Erie community on a non-discriminatory, first-come, first-served basis.

Programs produced through CATV are the sole responsibility of the volunteer producers involved. Our staff provides assistance but does not influence content in any way. In this way, the programs seen on Channel 2 reflect the diverse interests and viewpoints of the Erie community.

How To Get Started

Anyone who lives or works in the City of Erie, or resides in Erie County and belongs to an organization based in the City may become a member of Community Access Television. Both individual and organizational memberships are available.

In order to have access to TV production resources and training, a person must become a CAT member by:

1. Attending one of our orientation sessions on the first Thursday of every month.
2. Showing proof of residency in the City of Erie, or Erie County;
3. Signing a membership application;
4. Paying the current membership fee;
5. Taking courses in Studio Production or meeting with the CATV production coordinator to demonstrate proficiency.
6. Produce video content, then edit that content into a program for Channel 2.
